The role

Applications are invited for a one -year, fixed-term Departmental Lectureship (DL) in History of Art, tenable from 1 October 2026. The appointment will support core teaching in History of Art following the retirement of a Statutory Professor. The role focuses on co-teaching key compulsory undergraduate and postgraduate methods courses, which are central to the curriculum and taken by all students, alongside contributing to lectures across other core courses.

The postholder will also supervise a number of BA and MSt dissertations, assist with departmental activities such as the UNIQ summer school and research symposia, and contribute to administrative and marking duties.

The person appointed to the position will be expected to engage in advanced study or research in the History of Art, and to give high-quality tutorials, classes, lectures, and supervision in History of Art at both undergraduate and graduate level.

The appointee will be assigned a mentor, who will be a senior member of the Department or the History Faculty. In addition, the History Faculty provides support for early career researchers, including assistance in the preparation and submission of grant and fellowship applications through the Faculty Research Co-ordinator and Research Development Officer.

Responsibilities

Teaching

1. Co-teach the compulsory Concepts & Methods/Approaches course for our 2nd-year BA students in Michaelmas and Hilary Term; co-teach the compulsory Issues in Art History MSt course in MT and HT for at least 30 students; contribute as required to other Department courses;
2. Contribute to convening research seminars and workshops;
3. Supervise BA and Mst theses and dissertations;
4. Produce course materials, reading lists, and reference guides as required, and show a willingness to learn how to teach on a variety of platforms, including those online;
5. Take part in University examining for undergraduates and graduates as and when requested to do so;
6. Be the first point of contact for assigned students as required in matters relating to attendance, conduct, coursework, performance, and welfare (referring matters to appropriate others as needed);
7. Organise (in conjunction with relevant Faculty postholders) specific areas of the syllabus at undergraduate and/or graduate (Master's) levels;
8. Gather and analyse feedback from students, colleagues, and examiners, and modify course design, content, or delivery as appropriate
9. Participate in the undergraduate and graduate admissions exercise;
10. Ensure that students have a high-quality academic experience and appropriate levels of support.

Research

11. In support of the development of courses and, alongside teaching, manage own academic research activities, conduct independent research, and generate original ideas to build on existing concepts
12. Pursue academic publication projects, with mentoring support from Faculty postholders;
13. Where appropriate, contribute to collaborative projects with colleagues in the Faculty, partner institutions and research groups including co-convening events organised by the Faculty.

General duties

14. Engage positively and proactively with the academic community in the Faculty and College.

For an informal discussion about this opportunity, please contact Alastair Wright (email: alastair.wright@hoa.ox.ac.uk). Please send all practical and procedural queries to our recruitments team: recruitments@history.ox.ac.uk. All enquiries will be treated in strict confidence; they will not form part of the selection decision.

Pre-employment screening

Standard checks

If you are offered the post, the offer will be subject to standard pre-employment checks. You will be asked to provide: proof of your right-to-work in the UK; proof of your identity; and (if we haven't done so already) we will contact the referees you have nominated. If you have previously worked for the University we will also verify key information such as your dates of employment and reason for leaving your previous role with the department/unit where you worked. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities for which you may need us to make appropriate adjustments.

Please read the candidate notes on the University's pre-employment screening procedures at: <https://www.jobs.ox.ac.uk/pre-employment-checks>

About the University of Oxford

Oxford's departments and colleges aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford's researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

Oxford's self-governing community of international scholars includes Professors, Associate Professors, other college tutors, senior and junior research fellows and a large number University research staff. Research at Oxford combines disciplinary depth with an increasing focus on inter-disciplinary and multi-disciplinary activities addressing a rich and diverse range of issues.

Oxford's strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, and in providing all staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that supports everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is a great strength, and vital for innovation and creativity, Oxford aspires to build a truly inclusive community which values and respects every individual's unique contribution.

While Oxford has long traditions of scholarship, it is also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities. It consistently has the highest external research income of any university in the UK (the most recent figures are available at www.ox.ac.uk/about/organisation/finance-and-funding), and regularly creates spinout companies based on academic research generated within and owned by the University. Oxford is also recognised as a leading supporter of social enterprise.

Oxford admits undergraduate students with the intellectual potential to benefit fully from the small group learning to which Oxford is deeply committed. Meeting in small groups with their tutor, undergraduates are exposed to rigorous scholarly challenge and learn to develop their critical thinking, their ability to articulate their views with clarity, and their personal and intellectual confidence. They receive a high level of personal attention from leading academics.

Oxford has a strong postgraduate student body, who are attracted to Oxford by the international standing of the faculty, by the rigorous intellectual training on offer, by the excellent research and laboratory facilities available, and by the resources of the museums and libraries, including one of the world's greatest libraries, the Bodleian.

Humanities Division

The Humanities Division is one of four academic divisions in the University of Oxford, bringing together the faculties of Classics; English; History; Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics; Medieval and Modern Languages; Music; Asian and Middle Eastern Studies; Philosophy; and Theology and Religion, as well as the Ruskin School of Drawing and Fine Art. The division has responsibility for over 500 members of academic staff, for over 4,000 undergraduates (more than a third of the total undergraduate population of the University), and for about 1,600 postgraduate students.

The Division offers world-class teaching and research, backed by the superb resources of the University's libraries and museums, including the famous Bodleian Library, with its 11 million volumes and priceless early book and manuscript collections, and the Ashmolean Museum of Art and Archaeology. These historic resources are linked to cutting-edge agenda in research and teaching, with an increasing emphasis on interdisciplinarity.

The Division's faculties are among the largest in the world, enabling Oxford to offer an education in Arts and Humanities unparalleled in its range of subjects, from music and fine art to ancient and modern languages. For more information please visit: www.humanities.ox.ac.uk/

Faculty of History

The Faculty of History in Oxford is the largest in the UK, and one of the largest in the world. It has a very strong international reputation for its scholarship and its teaching of undergraduate and graduate students, with particular strengths that reach from late Roman times to the contemporary world, in the history of the British Isles, the history of continental Europe, imperial and global history, the history of the United States, economic and social history, intellectual history, and the history of science, medicine, and technology. Within the Faculty there is also a department for the History of Art. With the size of its History Faculty, its lively and varied research seminars and the major resources for research, which include, among others, the outstanding collections of the Bodleian Library and the University museums, Oxford offers a uniquely attractive research environment.

Since September 2025, the Faculty has been based at the Schwarzman Centre for the Humanities, a state-of-the-art cultural centre, which is the location of seven of the constituent units of the Humanities Division.

The Faculty of History provides a robust and supportive framework for research, including:

- Financial support for research travel, research assistance, and editorial help;
- A standard sabbatical leave system, with the possibility of additional special leave;
- Peer mentoring and career development review of research plans and progress;
- Research collaborations with other institutions;
- Energetic encouragement and support of externally-funded research projects, and for internal and interdisciplinary collaborations, through research centres;
- Support of, and engagement with, interdisciplinary teaching;
- Assistance in the formulation of research plans and funding bids.

The Faculty enables all its postholders to request up to £800 per year for research expenses, and makes additional funds available for organising conferences in Oxford. Annual career conversations identify those staff who may need extra support in achieving their research objectives, e.g. through relief from teaching or administrative burdens. Postholders can apply for seed-corn funding for specific research projects from the University's John Fell Fund, which can then help applicants to secure major external funding. In addition, to assist newly-appointed postholders in the development and publication of their research, Faculty funds are available for each new postholder to hold a workshop at which colleagues can discuss drafts of their monograph in gestation.

The Faculty has recently successfully received renewal of its Athena SWAN bronze award (first awarded in 2019), and we seek to provide a fully equal, inclusive and diverse environment for staff and students alike. There are working groups on gender equality, race equality and equality for people with disabilities, and an Equality and Diversity Committee which considers and implements policy. The Faculty has measured its performance against the recommendations of recent Royal Historical Society reports on gender and race equality and we regularly and actively implement policy to address inequalities.

For more information about the Faculty please see www.history.ox.ac.uk.

History of Art

The History of Art Department's parent faculty is History, within the Humanities Division of the University. The Department itself is housed at the Schwarzman Centre for Humanities, which provides a material and intellectual home for staff and students. It also provides resources and technical support, for example through the Visual Resources Centre (<http://www.hoa.ox.ac.uk/centre-visual-studies>), which is combined with a strong framework of professional and intellectual mentoring from senior colleagues.

Details of current History of Art postholders and their interests can be found on the Department's website: <https://www.hoa.ox.ac.uk/academic-and-admin-staff>. The Department also works closely with a wide range of scholars in other faculties with interests in visual and material culture, and staff of the Ashmolean Museum, Pitt Rivers Museum, Museum of the History of Science and the Christ Church Picture Gallery are involved in the teaching and research culture of the Department. For further information, see <http://www.hoa.ox.ac.uk/associated-academics>.

The active research culture of the Department is reflected in its weekly Art History Research Seminars (see <http://www.hoa.ox.ac.uk/events>), the annual lecture series given by the visiting Slade Professor of Fine Art (the most recent Slade Professor was Professor Esther da Costa Meyer), and a number of workshops and other events sponsored by the Centre for Visual Studies (see <http://www.hoa.ox.ac.uk/centre-visual-studies>).

Equal Opportunity Statement

The University of Oxford is committed to equal opportunity, and to being a place where everyone belongs and is supported to succeed. We recognise how the diversity of our community enriches our ability to deliver on our academic mission.

We welcome applications from individuals from all backgrounds, including those under-represented within higher education. No applicant or members of staff shall be unlawfully discriminated against on the basis of age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage or civil partnership, pregnancy or maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, or sexual orientation.

Employment with the University and progression within employment will be determined according to personal merit and the application of criteria related to the duties and conditions of the post. In all cases, the primary consideration will be the ability to perform the job.

As stated in the University's Equality Policy and Equality, Diversity and Inclusion Strategic Plan, our commitment to equality and diversity goes hand in hand with our commitment to academic freedom and free speech.

How to apply

Applications are made through our online recruitment portal. Information about how to apply is available on our Jobs website <https://www.jobs.ox.ac.uk/how-to-apply>.

Your application will be judged solely on the basis of how you demonstrate that you meet the selection criteria stated in the job description.

As part of your application you will be asked to provide details of two referees and indicate whether we can contact them now.

You will be asked to upload a CV and a supporting statement. The supporting statement must explain how you meet each of the selection criteria for the post using examples of your skills and experience. This may include experience gained in employment, education, or during career breaks (such as time out to care for dependants)

Please upload all documents as PDF files with your name and the document type in the filename.

All applications must be received by midday UK time on the closing date stated in the online advertisement.

Information for internal candidates

If you currently work at the University please note that:

- as part of the referencing process, we will contact your current department to confirm basic employment details including reason for leaving and information about your performance.
- although employees may hold multiple part-time posts, they may not hold more than the equivalent of a full time post. If you are offered this post, and accepting it would take you over the equivalent of full-time hours, you will be expected to resign from, or reduce hours in, your other posts(s) before starting work in the new post.

Information for priority candidates

A priority candidate is a University employee who is seeking redeployment because they have been advised that they are at risk of redundancy, or on grounds of ill-health/disability. Priority candidates are issued with a redeployment letter by their employing department(s).

If you are a priority candidate, please ensure that you attach your redeployment letter to your application (or email it to the contact address on the advert if the application form used for the vacancy does not allow attachments).
